Compassion in Action Webinar: Supporting Mental Health and Preventing Health Worker Suicide

Challenging work conditions, exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and its aftermath put millions of health workers at risk for severe stress, burnout, depression, anxiety, substance use disorders, and suicidal behavior. Mental health stigma and fear of the impact of required treatment disclosure on licensure and credentialing inhibit health workers from getting the help they need. However, more is now known about suicide risk and prevention, and practical mental health support and risk reduction strategies are available.

In this webinar hosted by Schwartz Center Chief Medical Officer Dr. Beth Lown, Judy Davidson, DNP, RN, MCCM, FAAN, nurse scientist at University of California San Diego Health and research scientist for the UC San Diego School of Medicine Department of Psychiatry, Jennifer Mensik Kennedy, PhD, MBA, RN, NEA-BC, FAAN, president of American Nurses Association, and Christine Yu Moutier, MD, chief medical officer of the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention will discuss the current status of health worker

Your Generous Contributions At Work

A recent interview with the Chief Medical Officer at one of our largest member health systems demonstrated what can happen when healthcare leaders, Development teams, and generous donors align around protecting the patient-provider relationship. When presented with a list of options for philanthropic support, a donor selected the Schwartz Rounds® as the program she and her husband wanted to support. “Dollar for dollar, my husband and I knew the impact of our donation would be greatest if we invested in the Schwartz Rounds program for our amazing hospital staff.” The program was such a success that the donor asked to make an additional gift to support the roll-out of the Schwartz Rounds program across the entire hospital system so that more care providers could benefit. Both the donors and system leadership are thrilled with the impact of this generous gift, knowing that patients and patient families are benefiting from a program that supports the mental health and well-being of their care providers.
