Why Social Support Matters for Frontline Caregivers Right Now

Beth Lown, MD

Register for our Upcoming Compassion in Action Webinars

We have two upcoming free Compassion in Action webinars to announce:

The first features Schwartz Center Chief Medical Officer Beth Lown, MD, as she discusses the current state of evidence about what makes interventions effective in supporting caregivers' mental health during pandemics and other causes of mass trauma. This webinar takes place October 5, 2021, from 3:00-4:00 pm ET.

The second features clinical health psychologist Dr. Christine Runyan, who will explore the opposing internal experiences of anger and compassion that so many clinicians are grappling with today, asking: What is the relationship between these emotions? What should we do when anger enters clinical practice? And what do clinicians need to know about managing the emotions that attend the real and complex challenges of the moment? This webinar takes place October 19, 2021, from 3:00-4:00 pm ET.

TRUE COMPASSION
MEANS NOT ONLY FEELING
ANOTHER'S PAIN, BUT ALSO BEING MOVED TO HELP REMOVE IT.

DANIEL GOLEMAN

"True compassion means not only feeling another's pain, but also being moved to help remove it."

THE ONLY THING MORE POWERFUL THAN
COMPASSION IS THE WAY IT BEGETS
MORE COMPASSION.
HOW IT DOESN'T RUN OUT.
HOW IT MULTIPLIES.
HOW IT IS PASSED ON AND ON AND ON.

TERRY STANCIN, PhD, ABPP
2018 NCCY AWARD RECIPIENT

"The only thing more powerful than compassion is the way it begets more compassion. How it doesn't run out. How it multiplies. How it is passed on and on and on."
